Additional Resources for Collectors

Consumer Reports® has information that can help consumers in the areas of concern to consumers including finance and health. In its newsletter Consumer Reports Money Adviser™ you will even find an article about old stocks, coins, stamps, paper currency, rare books and old silver, among other financial subjects. You may be particularly interested in “Tracking Down Old Stock”, June 2006, “How to Sell a Prized Collection”, July 2007. Visit www.ConsumerReports.org, or contact Consumers Union, the nonprofit publisher, for print copies of Consumer Reports® and Consumer Reports Money Adviser™.

Books

It is very simple to set up your own online bookstore through two companies, Amazon or Abe Books. I have used both. Amazon using a PayPal account simplifies the financial end of the selling, but Abe Books supplies software for a large quantity of books and has a unique audience of book aficionados.

Vintage French Posters

Sarah Stocking Antique Posters <http://www.sarahstocking.com>

Items with a linen backing are more valuable. Please review her website to see the high prices – some grade B posters that are torn are offered for $4,000.00 and others for $300.00 to $600.00.
